A STYLE GUIDE FOR YOUR ENGAGEMENT SESSION

THE ENGAGEMENT SESSION

Style Guide

The engagement session captures the beginning of your love story. It's a beautiful way to display the life you've built together, capture these moments with each other, and give family and freinds a snapshot of what's to come. It offers us the chance to work with together before the day of and the opportunity for us to get to know each other better!

The Look

With natural light photography it is extremely important to be on time, the amount of time with light will directly affect the amount of images you receive. You can have up to three outfits (two changes), this allows you several different looks without cutting into too much of your session time. Here is some styling inspiration to help you decide on what to wear. Each look should complement each other, and the style/colors/theme of your wedding.

Casual

This look should display how you are on an average day together to show your personality.

Dressy

Style according to the location.

Formal

I recommend a long dress for ladies and a dapper tie and sports coat for guys.

and so your adventure begins!

The Location

I am betting the next question you have is , “where should we take our engagement photos?” I am more than happy to help list some recommended locations for you, but first it’s important to consider what any locations near-and-dear to you, that reflect your personality, and are somewhat meaningful to you. I like to start close to sunset, so that you have time to get comfortable coming into golden hour. The location for Emmie + Nathan’s session, the River Place, featured below was the perfect setting to display their love story. Their first date was hiking Abrams’ Trail in Cades Cove, they really enjoy the outdoors together. They started off hiking by the river, and worked their way towards the horses that helped create a more romantic vibe.
